SUCCESSFUL AUCTIONEER

Col. J. M. GARNER

Familiar all his life with live stock and farm products and machinery, and studying prices of all other merchandise, the success which has attended the career of the young man on the block whose picture appears above is easily understood.

February 23 at Marshall, Mo., for the Seattle Farms he sold a number of Chester White hogs, winning the record for gilts by selling Seattle Prudence for $515.00. The pig is under a year old. Col. Garner sold 50 Chester Whites from the herd at an average of $105.00.

Col. Garner has been engaged nearly every day since the middle of January and has conducted sales in five counties. He is a member of J. S. Garner and Sons, Armstrong, Mo., breeders of saddle horses, Jacks and Chester White hogs.

Roads which have been dragged are in fine condition but if ever there was a time when all the roads should be put in condition, it is now. Holes and ruts for puddles should be filled by drags. Yes, its going to rain, then rain some more.

Ed Courtney and family have moved to a farm south east of Salisbury. Their many old friends and especially their near neighbors west of this city regret losing them from among us. They were here Sunday visiting around their old home.

In the cemetery Association report printed on our first page last week the type had thanks extended to the Recorder for the publication instead of the Courier. Mrs. A. J. Byerly put one over on us that time and we acknowledge the joke. We used the same type the Recorder used before.

Al Harding's old family buggy horse took a "spell" Tuesday morning on the dump west of the court house and upset the buggy and spilled the ex-sheriff around considerably. He was not hurt nor scared but some mad, both at the critter and the driver of the auto who was the scarecrow to the old hoss.

Constable George Cheatham of Sumner came down in tow of Sam Higgins who was lodged in jail in default of bond on a charge of purloining chickens among which there must have been hens. Stealing roosters is petit larceny and laying violent hands on hens is near grand larceny, if the hens are among the parties laying and the presumption in law is that they lay until otherwise proven beyond a reasonable doubt. The absence of roosters from the hen yard is not evidence in favor of the defendant.

Dr. Alexander Cairns

On the afternoon of March 6, Dr. Alexander Cairns, a witty Irish orator will entertain his audience as well as instruct. There are a great many questions that many of us perhaps are not familiar with, with reference to the Food Conservation. We feel safe to say that this lecture will be splendidly patriotic and entertaining and from the recommendations we get of this speaker we feel safe to say that there will not be a dull moment during the program.

He is an international character and it is not often that we have an opportunity to hear such men and I believe that everyone who possibly can should be present. We would like splendidly, if it could be arranged, for as many high school grades as possible to attend in a body.

Drag the roads now.

The article in this issue written by a man who was a young doctor at Dalton at the time of the massacre of Dr. Sturman will prove of interest to all who read it. There were more than 40 suspects arrested and brot before a grand jury for the slaying. Dave Ballew, formerly of Cunningham, was one of the grand jury. He visited in Salisbury a week ago.
